S. E. KOOTENAY NEWS

The only graphite mine in the Province is situated on the St. Mary's river and the vein is three feet wide.

Tiger Passcan—This property is worked in a small though very substantial manner. Having many natural advantages it enables the manager to operate the mine at a low cost and many other properties can be worked in the same manner.

Rapid progress is being made in construction work on the immense smelting plant of the Sullivan Mining Co., being erected at Marysville.

Ball river at present is about highest stream in Southeast Kootenai.
Active operations toward building
big dam is progressing.

Report has it that the Ball River M ing & Power Co. will be prepared furnish power and light to the mine and around Fort Steele next year.

It is stated on good authority that St. Eugene mine will pay a profit of $500,000 to the stockholders this year. This included the profit for the mine and lead bounty given by the Canadian Government for the production of lead ore.

Last month the St. Eugene is reported to have taken out $45,000, and the concentrating plant is now in excellent condition and in active operation at full capacity. This means that St. Eugene is one of the greatest producers of lead in the world.

The St. Eugene continued.

WILMER, B.C., THURSDAY, OCT. 13, 1904.

The building of a railway through any country is an event that creates attention far and near, and acts as an advertising medium in a manner that nothing else can do.

Owing to the general geography of British Columbia the construction of a railway is of even more importance than in most other countries, as in this province of mountains and valleys little real solid progress can be made until such an event takes place.

It is not so very many years ago that the idea of building a railway from the prairie provinces through the mighty Rocky, Selkirk and Cascade mountains and on to the Pacific coast was considered an utter impossibility by the masses. But when men with keen foresight saw that by the construction of such a road, a vast pile of money was to be made, then these difficulties were faced and overcome. True, there were engineering feats to be accomplished that were said to be beyond the pall of mankind, yet men were found equal to the task and today we hear men declare that the ironhorse could reach the moon if only terra firma existed that distance.

Once the great ranges of mountains were crossed it soon developed that these mountains and valleys contained resources that demanded still other railways, and branch after branch had to be added, as the different valleys and mountains were exploited, until now comes the opening of great Upper Columbia and Upper Kootenay valleys.

Even before the ironhorse had crossed to the Coast the advance guards of civilization—the prospectors—had come from the south and penetrated into these valleys and discovered its riches of mineral, timber and agriculture, but in those early days the yellow metal was the only wealth that they could realize a living out of—and a big living many realized. So for a number of years placer mining for gold was carried on along Wild Horse, Findlay, Toby and numerous other creeks—the coin of this realm being entirely gold dust.

Later on a few ranchers found there way up the valley and became settlers here, who in turn were followed by navigators. Navigation, of course, at this early date was of a primitive nature, small scows, or "punts" were used to haul supplies up the river from G. Iden, when the C. P. R. had built the main line that far. Then a wagon road was built to Fort Steele and steamboats were operated on both the Columbia and Kootenay rivers. Next the Crow's Nest railway was built to the great benefit of the southern end, and now we are on the lookout for the train that will connect these two lines north and south of us.

It is now about twelve years since quartz mining was first attempted in this valley on a very small scale, although it was known for years before that time that large outcrops of silver-lead and copper ores existed in the hills hard by. Yet it may be said that it was not until five or six years ago the prospectors gave much of their attention to lode discoveries and quartz mining was started on any considerable scale. About four years ago development began to assume proportions that attracted outside notice and each year since has seen an increase, until now better transportation facilities are acknowledged a necessity for development on a larger scale; although the district has enjoyed transportation by water that many another mining camp has envied, and which is expable of a much larger business during the summer months than it has yet accomplished.

However, the construction of the railway through this valley which is now certain to be commenced next spring, will not require any great engineering feats; in fact, the situation is quite the reverse, for this road is to be notable for its exceptionally good grade, and besides opening this phenomenally rich country is to serve the purpose of bringing the heavy freight, that has now proven to be of such enormous proportions as to require a better road than the main line of the C.P.R. at present affords, as this line will cut out the heavy haul over the "Big Hill," east of Golden. While it is evident the company intend running the bulk of their freight over this new line, the passenger traffic will also reach considerable proportions as the scenery alone will warrant it, and in case of slides or accidents this route will bear the entire traffic.

WISHING

Do you wish the world were better?

Let me tell you what to do?

Set a watch upon your actions.

Keep them always straight and true.

Eid your mind of selfish motives.

Let your thought be clean and high.

You can make a little Eden.

Of the sphere you occupy.

Do you wish the world were happy?

Then remember day by day

Just to scatter seeds of kindness

As you pass along the way.

For the pleasure of the many

May his citizens thank to one,

As the hand that plants the acorn

Shelters armies from the sun.

THANKSGIVING TIME

Thanksgiving Day is really fun, of course. I'm glad it's near. 'Cause all my cousins, uncles, aunts, they comes to dinner here. An' say we have the finest time! An' when the turkey's carved, Me an' the other kids, ma says, acts like we most was starved.

But, say! We ain't starved really, but the table looks so good, Us little chaps each want to eat the most, an' if we could, We'd pick out all the white meat an' the dressin' an' we might— But, shucks! Come, we don't say so, for that wouldn't be polite.

Then, after dinner's over, we all try to reckon out The awful lot of things we should feel full of thanks for. We're full of turkey, of course, but that we give thanks for. An' pa says he'll be thankful if our bones don't burst.

I passed my examinations. My first lot of thanks for that. An' sister Mat is thankful 'cause she's got a fur-trimmed hat. An' there's my skates and skis, an' my real air gun an' a rifle. My ma's eight-labeled jack-o'-lantern an' my cozy rubber boots. There's all these things and others too, but none of us'll find Most full of thanks of all, I guess, 'cause it's Thanksgiving time.

COFFETTI

Your criticism of another is a verdict on yourself. The man who is afraid of burning his wick need not hope to enlighten the world.

Talents are tools and not merchandise. The great lives have always lived something greater than life.

The gain of love is lost by the love of self.

Schools are good and necessary; but the man who schools himself learns the vital lesson.

A stock margin is the narrow and slippery run around the back of ruin.

It has been gravely computed that there are 65,000,000,000 hands at work; but we constantly hear people say that the individual hand of business and achievement is the only one that counts.

When a man sets popularity before honesty he is likely to let principle out of his heart.

Nothing that gets a soul over its imagination.

A leaf in universal brotherhood and the forgiveness of sins seem to be as available at a certain stage of mental growth as asparagus in a puppy.

Love stings as fondly as he stings.—Wanderer.

Love's best light is in seeming trust.—Shakespeare.

They who love are but one step from heaven.—Lovel.

Love is not, where most it is, fondness or passion.

The Poison in Shackles.

There is no more wholesome food among fish than a mackerel, yet close along the locksmen of that same edible there lies a strip of flesh which may bring you to death's door even if it fails to kill you. You may eat it a hundred times and it will be as wholesome as the rest of the fish, but the mackerel and first time or earlier it may cause terrible trouble. This is because it occasionally, without any sign or any known reason, discharges a powerful irritant poison. There is no interference in the appearance of the fish or in its flavor; nothing to warn you of the danger. The only remedy is to leave the fish alone and not take the flesh that lies in the angle of the backbone's edges. There is never a year without a few deaths from this cause, though you might eat mackerels scores of times without taking harm. Yet animals have some way of detecting the poison, and a cat will not eat the flesh from the mackerel's spine if it is dangerous. It is not a question of staleness—a perfectly fresh fish may be deadly and a stale one harmless.—London Standard.

Lady Grey's Debt Paying.

Thomas Greaves, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, has presented some queer pictures of English court life. During a reign of King William IV, Greaves wrote: "The Greys had just come from Windsor castle. Lady Grey, in her distressed manner, said she was really more dead than alive. She said all the boring she had ever endured before was literally nothing compared with her misery of the two preceding nights. She begged she never should see a mackerel table again; she was so tired with the one that the queen and the king, the Duchess of Gloucester, Princess Augusta, Mrs. Leveson and herself had sat around for hours, the queen knitting or nothing a purse, the king sleeping and occasionally waking for the purpose of saying 'Exactly so, ma'am' and then sleeping again. The queen was a real one to Lady Grey till the moment she came away, when she could afford to be a little civil at getting out of her."

Curious Hunting Custom.

The Labrador Indians when on a hunt stalk on in advance of the trail with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and meat or shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact line of the slender stick out. The women, telling painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know slowly the difference of time. They know, too, whether they dare to linger for a few minutes rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on.

Long Journeys Made by Whales.

The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland in May and June travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off Norway. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidence of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of Southern America have been found stuck in them.—St. James Gazette.

And Japanese Customs.

The Japanese ladies have no chin-rings, and you are never warned enough until the loose catches drop. The Japanese have lost and so mutton; the Chinese have mutton and so beef. Japanese bells, like Japanese bells, have no tongue. Japanese snakes have no poison; Japanese mules have no harness. The Japanese alphabet is not an alphabet, but a collection of severely useful ideograms to dispense with the process in ordinary use by the Chinese—"Queer Things About Japan."

A Story of Brahmins.

A rather celebrated composer asked to be allowed to play his very latest composition to Brahmins and did so with tremendous vigor, the progression streaming down his face as he pointed the piano. Brahmins at the end of the performance poked up a sheet of the manuscript and, finding it between his finger and thumb, enthusiastically exclaimed: "I say, where do you get your music paper? It's first rate."

Plants Without Roots.

The "flower of the air" is a curious plant found in China and Japan. It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed in its growth. It is a small plant with a dry tree or scrub-like. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily, white, translucent and delicate. It is capable of being transported 600 or 700 miles, and it grows as it travels suspended on a twig.

Thorns.

"Do all roses have thorns, pop?"
"Yes, my son."
"I can't find any on those roses on my back!"
"You would if you had to pay for the hat, my son."

Bobbie's Metaphor.

"What do you think now, Bobbie?"
"I don't think," replied the boy. "My first thought has been delayed by a bit longer."

Birth.

"Little Willie—Pa, Pa—Well, what is B. Willie? Little Willie is writing a profession or a license? Illustrated by B. C."

WINDERMERE ITEMS

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mrs. J. C. Pitts was the hostess at a charming little tea last Friday afternoon. The tea table and drawing room of the "Bungalow" were decorated with purple and white asters. Miss Brice of Vancouver and Miss Norris of Toronto assisted. Mrs. Pitts in looking after her guests and in seeing that all partook of the delicacies with which the tea table was bountifully supplied. Invitations were extended to about fifteen ladies.

Last Thursday the Windermere hall presented a very pretty appearance indeed, being beautifully decorated with flags, hunting and strings of Chinese lanterns for the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Stoddart, to welcome the survey party camped at our creek. The evening proved to be a very enjoyable one for those present, but many expressions of regret were heard that the heavy rain, which started to fall about 6 o'clock, had prevented those from the nearby towns from coming to the dance.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Grant and staff were the hosts at a gayety tea given at their camp. Tea was served in a gayety fashion out of the cups, in one of the tents thickly carpeted with fit bouquets, with rugs and cushions spread around for visitors, while just outside the door of the tent a huge campfire blazed—the many dances provided were greatly enjoyed by all. After tea music and songs were given by various members of the survey party and were much appreciated. Just before the guests took their leave they were grouped and photographed by two of the gentlemen.

Mrs. E. A. Kimpton gave a delightful musical Saturday evening. It is doubtful if ever before Windermere has had so many talented musicians assembled together. Those who contributed to the pleasure of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Smyth, Mrs. Pitts, Miss Batty, Miss Brice, Messrs. Earl Castil and Gable.

Major McCombs arrived on Monday, stage from the Simlar Hot Springs, where he has spent the last three weeks. He left again Tuesday morning on the Cranbrook stage for Thunder Hill and will proceed from there to Findlay creek for a hunting trip.

The Pharmigan arrived Monday and left again Tuesday morning with the survey party on hand. Windermere regrets very much the loss of our visitors and will look forward with pleasure to their return trip this winter.

Mine Owners not Allowed to Combine Against Union

A Leadville dispatch says Judge Frank M. Oakes issued an injunction against the members of the Leadville Mining District Association, restraining the Association from proceeding further to compel miners to forsake the Western Federation of Miners, and take out associated cards, in order to retain their positions in the mine of the company. Nearly two thousand cards had been issued by the association when the work in this district was interrupted. The application for an injunction was made by the president and secretary of the local miners union. The defendants comprises nearly every mine owner and mine manager in the camp. They are restrained from discriminating against any miner because of his being a member of the Western Federation of Miners; from making out a blacklist; from compelling members of the Federation to abandon the organization; from compelling them to sign any agreement that they renounce membership in the Federation; from carrying out or doing anything to furtherance of any plan to

The construction of the Kootenay Central Railway between Fort Steele and Golden will open up a valley rich in agricultural and pastoral resources, and possessing the best climate in Kootenay. The snow fall is light, particularly in the southern part of the district. The Selkirk mountains abound in silver-lead ores, while gold and copper-bearing ores are of frequent occurrence. With railway transportation this section of Kootenay should see great development. Fine timber abounds in the valleys east and west of the Columbia river. We believe the time will come when this railway will be extended northward to the Yukon—Kootenay Mail, Revelstoke. Try The Outcrop for job printing.
